CHOREA

CHOREA Theatre is a thriving, uncountable and unpredictable collective of artists, performers, musicians, dancers, actors, professional theatre practicioners and theorists.

We create interdisciplinary artistic, educational, and social projects: performances, concerts, workshops, and happenings.
We employ creative, innovative and unique work methods, going beyont the cultural mainstream.
We direct our work to adults, youth and children, those who are regular theatre-goers, those with limited access to art, and those looking for alternative cultural experiences and initiatives.
We put emphasis on team-building, joint cooperation, partnership, group dynamics, interrelations, discovering creative potentials, and the awareness of body, voice and musicality, in our work.

What makes us set out on a journey, even though we don't know where it will take us?
Or perhaps it's not about the destination. It's about who we become along the way.

"Conference of the Birds" is another collaboration between the artists of CHOREA Theatre and director Łukasz Kos. This time, the creators draw upon the 12th-century poem by Fariduddin Attar, one of the most important works of Sufi literature.

It is a dialogue on humanism that transcends cultural, religious, and historical differences. t is an attempt to inspire hope for finding unity and shared values in a stratifying and polarizing world.

dir. Konrad Dworakowski

100 min. | 14+

Trailer

The TODAY seems to be dangerous and unpredictable. Again, usurpers and tyrants have run rampant. So our intention was to make a radical gesture through theatre of form - juicy and driven by experimentation. Bold and committed. And Alfred Jarry - who caused unrest in his time with his work - is our inspiration and matchless model.

DEATH ON A PEAR TREE

2021 | CHOREA Theatre

dir. Łukasz Kos

120 min. | 14+

Trailer

In Wandurski's drama from the 1920s, immortality - defined here as the lack of death - represents a longing we fervently pursue, yet ultimately it reveals itself as our greatest nightmare, a curse, and a source of conflict and warfare.

Who would have the audacity to assert such a notion in contemporary times?

An extraordinary journey into the depths of Bruno Schulz's prose - hypnotizing in terms of visuals, music, and movement.
We touch and explore the subject of memory, how it shapes our physicality and how it affects the spiritual aspect of our being. We are trying to read between Bruno Schultz's lines to get inspiration about the story of our lives. We keep track of how those stories meander and transpire through one another.

AFTER THE BIRDS

2005 | CHOREA Theatre & Earthfall

dir. Jess Cohen & Jim Ennis

& Tomasz Rodowicz

Trailer

70 min. | 14+

Performance inspired by Aristophanes' "The Birds" was intended to be a comedy. However, following the terrorist attacks in London in 2005, when we were working on the play, it evolved into a bittersweet warning and a poignant cautionary tale for all of us.

Despite the passing of years, the performance is still a very topical theatrical event.

An industrial-style show in which a 30-member chorus of lost souls tries to find meaning in a world of super-fast 5G internet and endless queues at the National Health Fund. It is a performance about a reality in which the boundaries between fact and imagination are increasingly blurred.
